PREFACE

This is one of the most interesting and valuable small collections by autographic material that has come on the market in many years, while the Lincolniana approaches the Lambert and Burton collections in variety and importance.

With the exception of Chase, Gwinnett and Middleton, the sale includes a complete set of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence. The Lynch is a cut signature, as a matter of course, for only one of his letters, that in the New York Public Library, is known to collectors. This signature was cut from a volume of Swift's works and its genuineness is authenticated by Lyman C. Draper. Among the holograph letters by the Signers those by Franklin, Lee, Nelson, and Whipple are exceedingly interesting and important for their contents, and would greatly strengthen some of the few complete collections of the Signers now in existence. The letter by Hooper is of great importance because it bears the signature of two other Signers, Hewes and Penn.

The Presidential Set, to be sold separately also, is one of the very best that has ever come on the market. With one or two exceptions, each President is represented by a full autograph letter signed, and in most cases the letters are extremely interesting from personal and historical points of view.

Among the many literary men who are represented in this collection by letters entirely out of the usual order as to contents are Coleridge, De Quincey, Hawthorne, Holmes, Kipling, Longfellow, Poe, Scott, Southey, Tennyson, and Wordsworth—to mention only a few—and among the soldiers and sailors are Ethan Allen, Benedict Arnold, John Barry, Gates, Greene, Hamilton, John Paul Jones, Knox, Lafayette, Putnam, and many more.

The autograph material in the Lincolniana includes twenty-four letters and documents in the handwriting of Abraham Lincoln, two letters by Mrs. Lincoln, a boyhood letter by "Tad" Lincoln, whose death occurred a few years after that of his father, and a large number of very interesting letters bearing on the public and private life of the great emancipator.

All the books and pamphlets in the three concluding sessions of the sale relate to the life, public services, and tragic death of Abraham Lincoln and comprise one of the most important collections ever gathered on this subject. Some of the items were not in the Lambert or Burton collections and are unknown to the Lincoln bibliographers.

Recommends the continuing in office of Doctor Jonas Fay as surgeon with the force which took Ticonderoga. Interesting as well as important for the quaintness of its language and phraseology. "The Hazard of Taking Ticonderoga was supposed to be such that the Comitee of War for the Expedition Employ'd Mr. Jonas Fay of Bennington to Proceede with the Scout to said Premises in Character of Doctor & Chirurgion, which Character Mr. Fay has Merited by Ten Years of Successful Practice and as there appears still a Greater Prospect of Need of a Person skilled in these Sciences and as Doctor Fay has with him on the Premises Considerable of a Quantity of Medicines, &c., and is willing and well skilled to Continue the Campaign in the said Capacity, I would therefore Recommend him to be Continued by Your Honour's Appointment and Ratification thereof thro. the Campaign in the Capacity aforesaid. This recommendation and request is made on the Hypothesis that Government will send a Military force to maintain the Sovereignty of Lake Champlain in favour of the Colonies." The endorsement on the back is in the autograph of William Williams, then Secy. to Gov. Trumbull, and later Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

"The most important incident of that day was the development of a design, which I have long suspected, to sacrifice the public lands, as a consideration to induce certain States, within which they are situated, to abandon the Tariff. Whether such a bargain will finally be consummated remains to be seen," etc.

22. CLEMENS (SAMUEL L.). A. L. S., 2 pp. 8vo. London, Sept. 28 [1872.] To Elisha Bliss, his publisher; with etched portrait. 2 pieces.

Tells of being "at the annual dinner of the Sheriffs of London, mine being (between you and me) a name which was received with a flattering out-burst of spontaneous applause. I might have perished on the spot but for * * * Sir John Bennett, & I want you to paste the enclosed in a couple of the handsomest copies of the Innocents & Roughing It, & send them to him," etc.

23. CLEMENS (SAMUEL L.). A. L. S. "Mark." 2 pp. 8vo. Elmira, 18th, n. d. To [Elisha] Bliss, his publisher. With portrait. 2 pieces (folds of letter strengthened).

He talks of the "excessive malignity and most mischievous workers of the opposition" and says "I never found my religious faith in the worth and dignity of man so necessary to rescue me from the temptation to misanthropy." "I remain tranquil, my mind in the fullest possession of all its powers, but so weak as to occasion great anxiety," &c.

25. COOPER (JAMES FENIMORE). A. L. S., 2½ pp. 4to. Ostego Hall, Cooperstown, Sept. 5, 1848. To Samuel L. Harris, Navy Department, Washington, with address on back in Cooper's hand. Also, engraved view of Otsego Hall and portrait of Cooper. 3 pieces.

Unusually long, closely-written letter on the forthcoming Presidential election. He discusses fully the President's veto, and upholds the American form while explaining the disuse of the veto by the King of England. He also attacks Gen. Taylor's "notion of letting Congress lead the Government" as "throwing away the principle advantage for which the office of President was created," and replies to Mr. Clayton's logic upon one man controlling the destinies of many. He concludes: "I have little doubt that General Cass will be elected; should he not be, I have with you this written opinion—viz.:—That General Taylor's administration will be a complete failure, and give as much dissatisfaction to those who put him in as to any other portion of the country."

26. CROCKETT (COL. DAVID, killed at the defence of the Alamo). A. L. S., 1 p. 4to. Mouth of the Sandy, Henry County, Tenn., June 26, 1835. To Messrs. Carey and Hart. Portrait. 2 pieces.

*"In the very greatest haste, I enclose to you 2 sheets * * * to meet a bill which I gave on Sunday last of the following form: 'Two days after date,' &c. 'You have disturbed me very much by not sending proofs of the Memoranda from the Pocket-book of a late Opium-Eater. For God's sake in future send me proofs of all things. I foresee most important errata. * * * [and] I had since thought of most important additions, which are now lost. * * * I fear this omission, as well as so many other defects of due energy in conducting the same, which I could point out, arise from dyspepsia. Dyspepsia is the ruin of most things: empires, expeditions, and everything else.' &c."*

*"Dear Leigh: I have been very lonely since you left, although * * * invitations to parties, receptions, the opera, &c., pour in on me, and I am rattled. "General Lee and Col. Laurens has had a duel in which the former was wounded in the back. The cause of the duel I have not learnt, but it has been said General Lee affronted Mrs. Washington at the Assembly before His Excellency's arrival in town; but whether it is true or not I cannot tell," etc.

39. GREENE (GEN. NATHANAEAL). A. L. S., 3 pp. folio. Head Quarters South Carolina, Oct. 26, 1781. Portrait. 2 pieces.

To Col. Jeremiah Wadsworth: "By the papers I see General Arnold has been spreading death and desolation among you. How long is this curse upon the human race to go unpunished? Certainly vengeance will overtake him shortly; and oh! that it may happen in a way that his Country may be revenged on him! But enough of the wretch for the present. I congratulate you upon our happy prospects in Virginia. Our hopes and expectations are all alive here. Fortune must be very ill-natured to give the Modern Hannibal an opportunity to escape; and if he falls as there is little doubt of, the pride of Britain will tumble in the dust. What a triumph to America! What a crown of laurels to General Washington!" etc.

40. HAMILTON (ALEXANDER). A. L. S., 2½ pp. Svo. Albany, Sept. 7, 1782.

To Robert Benson—Aide to Gov. Clinton: "In obedience to Mr. Morris's instructions I lately wrote to His Excellency the Governor requesting information on a variety of matters, which it is of great importance to the Financier and to the public to know. The Governor in his answer tells me that the returns lately made by different public officers and on the files of the Legislature will answer most of the questions stated by me. The principal ones were concerning: 'The supplies of every kind, money, provisions, forage, transportation, &c., which have been furnished by this State to the United States since the 18th of March, 1780. The amount of the different paper Currencies in the State and the respective rate of depreciation,'" etc.

42. HARTE (BRET). A. L. S., 2½ pp. 12mo. Octr. 14, 1874. To F. E. Bliss, Publisher, complaining of careless proof-reading. The word "cañon," he says, has been repeatedly spelt "canon," in spite of his many corrections. Lacking a full font of italicised letters, he says, is not the sign of a first-class printing establishment, etc.

43. HAWTHORNE (NATHANIEL). A. L. S., 1 p. 4to. West Newton, March 10th, 1852. With etched portrait. 2 pieces.

"I have resided in one or two places since leaving Salem, whither your note was directed. It has finally reached me here. I take pleasure in complying with your request for an autograph; but as to any additional remarks, I really do not know what to say—except that we have had a very severe winter (as you are probably aware) and that the spring seems rather backward. The frost is now coming out of the ground, and the mud, I am sorry to add, is absolutely bottomless." "P. S. I sometimes write better than the above and sometimes worse."

44. HENRY (PATRICK). A. L. S., 2 pp. square 8vo. Wmsburgh, May 28, 1778.

To R. H. Lee. "I could not gratify L'oycareti. I could not, tho' I tried hard for it, make him happy. While I doubt not his great zeal for America, I must his abilitys.—Pray try to get us 6 or 8 heavy cannon for a Fort to protect the ships of our Allies. Such a one is much wanted here," etc.

45. HOLMES (OLIVER W.). A. L. S., 2 pp. oblong 16mo. [Bost.,] June 16, 1882. To Francis H. Underwood, apparently relating to an alleged plagiarism.

"I don't doubt that poem was stored away among my old remembrances, but I did not remember that I remembered it. I am not a literary kleptomaniac, but when our brain-pockets are turned inside out we find a lot of things which we have appropriated in some way or other," &c. Honestly yours."

46. HOLMES (OLIVER W.). A. L. S., 1 p. 8vo. Bost., Dec. 27, 1888. Written on page 3 of a double sheet, page 1 of which has a printed notice that Dr. Holmes' failing eyesight obliges him to contract his correspondence.

To [Francis H.] Underwood, sometime U. S. Consul at Glasgow, Scotland. Holmes hopes he will write his experiences while there. He writes of Professor Max Muller and mentions that Lowell has returned, dined with Holmes the other day, and will do so again. &c.

47. HOUSTON (SAMUEL, President of Texas). A. L. S., 2½ pp. folio. Sparta, Tenn., Nov. 6, 1826. To Maj. W. J. Worth at West Point, N. Y. Franked address on the back. Portrait. 2 pieces.

50. JONES (JOHN PAUL). A. L. S., 2 pp. square 8vo. L'Orient, August 17, 1785. Portrait. 2 pieces.

To Thomas Jefferson. "I am still waiting for a decision respecting the claim of Mr. Peschilberg. But I think it my duty to inform you that one or two of the common sailors that served on board the Alliance, when that Frigate was under my orders, are now here in a Merchant Vessel, and, as I am this moment informed, they have been persuaded to write to Mr. Peschilberg desiring that their share in the prizes may not be sent to America but paid to them here."

51. KEY (FRANCIS SCOTT, Author of "Star Spangled Banner"). A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to. George Town, 21 July, 1819. With address on back to Jas. H. Lane, Shepherdstown, Va.

Interesting letter in connection with some property in the south. He mentions that the times are very bad, and that a nominal rent was as much as could be expected from a certain negro family, and that simply to keep up possession.

52. KIPLING (RUDYARD). A. L. S., 2 pp. 8vo. [Brattleboro, Vt.] Nov. 10, 1892. To Mr. Davis, [probably Richard Harding].

"Like the larkspur I've been waiting for your books, and they haven't come. I know and like them all, but I want them with your name in . . . I am meditating a visit to New York some time shortly I hope and then maybe we shall meet and I will answer the question Brander Mathews has answered and other questions and ask ever so many more."

53. KNOX (GEN. HENRY). A. L. S., 2 pp. folio. Camp Middle Brook. June 1, 1777. Portrait. 2 pieces.

To Harry Jackson. "I wrote you about the waggons, arms and clothing. You will be allowed 3 or 4."

The French gentleman you mention and no other person shall supersede me; the instant Congress confirms his appointment I shall leave the service. But the Genl. and all the General Officers think they cannot exhibit such a piece of ingratitude. But if they should I retire," etc.

54. LAFAYETTE (MARQUIS DE). A. L. S., 2 pp. 8vo. [New Jersey, Winter of 1777-78?]. To Col. [lias] Dayton. Portrait in aquatint. 2 pieces.

An important war dispatch ordering movements, reconnaissance, etc. portending an attack on the enemy. "Colonel Dayton is requested to send every one of his spies to Staten Island and New York with orders to inquire most particularly of the situation of the enemy at these two places, of every pass on the island, piquets, patroles, &c., the state of the ice, with orders to return to-morrow night before eleven o'clock."

"He will also give the appointment to the guides for Staten Island on to-morrow night at ten o'clock; at three o'clock in the morning he will dismiss them without the air of concern and give them an appointment for the next night."

"Tomorrow night and the day and night after tomorrow he will order the Militia at Elizabethtown to keep patrolling parties along the shore and prevent anybody getting in. But he is not to deliver the order at once, but, on the contrary, make their officers believe there is an expedition going on to-morrow night, and that then it has miscarried, but will be executed the night after that of to-morrow.

"If there is any intelligence, particularly such as ought to alarm the pass on North River, he will send it day and night to headquarters."

The French papers, such as the Courier Francais, the Constitutional, Court le debas will be you know what—Has been or is still moved by the Court faction, while in the Gazette and the Guardian you may find among many lies the effusions of disappointment and rage. "The Birth Day Book is rather a good idea, but how successful it would prove in a commercial point of view, you can better judge than I. As to 'Poems of Places,' I hardly know how many volumes will be necessary to complete the work. It will never do to slight our own Country; but I will limit myself as much as possible. The materials for the United States are very abundant, and to most of our people this part of the book will probably be more interesting than any other. 'Oceanica' is to be the closing volume of the series. As it was all ready, I had it put into type in advance, so as to have my hands free," etc.

"Your revival is gone back to King Arthur. There was nothing which I could feel any wish to interline. Something however Wordsworth thought might be added as instances of that impassioned character of sound & emphatic position of words, which cannot be displayed in its full beauty without the "Much ill health, a whole Odyssey of chances, and a sea of confused affairs must stand my excuse for this long silence. I am now better, much better, and have got a place, where, at least, I take a moment's health; and so I hasten to thank you for your having kindly sent me the Enchiridion, and still more kindly found a place for a word of mine in so select a company. It is much easier for you to imagine than for me to express—(there at least is an original phrase)—the gratification I felt when I saw my name in your collection; I fear it was the extract I enjoyed the most! I do not even see my way to revisit England this year, and it would be tempting Providence to make too sure of the next. I believe I require a long absence and much care to get properly on my legs again; and the abominable folly of getting well in winter, only to come home and fall ill again by autumn, is one which I am eager to avoid repeating." &c.

"Numerous engagements have prevented my thanking you earlier for your remarks upon Catholic Emancipation. The Concessions are now to be made, but . . . my notion is that withholding the privilege of sitting in parliament from Papists was not the cause of the discontent in Ireland and that therefore, granting that privilege cannot remove them. Virginia has lately had an acquisition of five thousand stand, and we doubt not she will assist us if we shall be imminently threatened. It would give us great satisfaction to learn that the long-expected supplies of this kind are arrived, for we shall have no fears from such a force as the enemy can employ against our particular State, if the Militia were completely armed.*"

"The Virginia Line, which is on its march to reinforce the Southern Army, will be, we hope, at least in time enough to come to relief of Charlestown, should it be invested, at all events to check them in their approach to our Country."

PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES

A Complete Set, Including Many Very Interesting Letters.

154. WASHINGTON (GEORGE, First Pres. of the U. S.). A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to. Mount Vernon, Oct. 29, 1799. To his nephew, Col. Wm. A. Washington. With two fine engraved portraits. 3 pieces.

27150 Recommending his nephew, Mr. Lawrence Lewis, who seeks advice and aid in a business way; also advising of two hundred gallons of whiskey ready for delivery. Mentions Mrs. Washington's improving health, etc.

155. ADAMS (JOHN, Second Pres. of U. S.). A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to. Phila., Dec. 6, 1794. To William Vernon, Esq. With engraved portrait.

5750 An interesting letter speaking of the failure of a Captain Gardener to secure "Permission" (probably Letter of Marque) from the Spanish Ministers on his recommendation, the reason being given that too many vessels had already received them.

"Our Contemporaries, who acted with us upon the Stage in more difficult times, are going off so fast that I feel, in the midst of the World, as if I was about to be left alone. Mr. Hancock, Mr. Sherman, Mr. Alsop, Dr. Witherspoon, Mr. Clark, R. H. Lee, Commodore Gillon have dropped off in a few months, and this moment I learn that the worthy Baron Steuben has been stricken with the Palsy. But even these Events are less afflicting than the continual slaughter of illustrious characters whom I once knew in France. Pray what is to be the end of these things?"

156. JEFFERSON (THOMAS, Third Pres. of U. S.). A. L. S., 2 pp. large 4to., closely written. Washington, July 16, 1808. To M. Warden. With engraved portrait. 2 pieces.

A remarkable letter giving his views of the raging conflict in Europe, which seems so peculiarly pertinent in America's present relations to the old world.

"Our eyes are turned with anxiety toward Europe to know whether, after bearing so much from them, they will let us live in peace. In truth I consider Europe but as a great mad-house, & in the present deranged state of their moral faculties to be pitied & avoided. There is no bravery in fighting a maniac. If we can avoid them during the fit, when they come to their senses, we may show them what kind of remembrance we retain of it. A few years of peace will be sufficient, but are essential to enable us to bid defiance to injury," etc.

Mentions also the inclosure of letters to various prominent Frenchmen, among them La Fayette; and of the sending of a collection of the bones of the Mammoth, just discovered, which he is presenting to the Institut Nationale de France.

It would be difficult to find a letter of greater or more varied interests by this man of many affairs.

Telling of his inability to return to the United States in time to accept the nomination for Justice of the Supreme Court, giving as the reason the birth of his daughter, "the first example, I believe, of an American, a native of Russia." Insists that his personal and family affairs shall not stand in the way of any arrangement made to relieve him of his post.

"We have just heard that the command under Genl. Scott had taken possession of the City of Mexico, after defeating the enemy with great loss; but it is doubtful whether it will bring about peace; time must intervene."

170. PIERCE (FRANKLIN, Fourteenth Pres. of U. S.).
-A. L. S., 3 pp. 8vo. Concord, April 16, 1861. [To Martin
Van Buren]. With L. S. of Van Buren, in reply, 4 pp. 8vo.
Lindenwald, April 20, 1861. Seemingly in Pierce's autograph but signed by Van Buren. 2 pieces.

A fine letter showing the extraordinary efforts he was willing to make to preserve the Union and prevent the calamity of civil strife. It is a fact little known to the historian of events and measures of prevention preceding the great conflict, that an effort had been made even at the eleventh hour to stay the calamity, by the combined efforts of the five surviving ex-presidents of the United States.

He writes to Van Buren, one of the five:

"The present unparalleled crisis in the affairs of our Country, is, I have no doubt, filling you, as it is me, with the profoundest sorrow. Is there any human power which can avert the conflict of arms now apparently near at hand, between two sections of the Union? The news to-night would seem to indicate that the central & border States (at least Virginia, Kentucky & Tennessee) will, in view of the military movements of the North, cast their lot with the States already seceded.

"There is no time for effective assemblages of the public, no time for conventions or protracted discussion. But it has occurred to me that you may take measures to suspend active military operations, secure opportunity for further reflection in the face of present dangers, & avert the most fearful calamity which has ever impended over a nation.

"If the five retired Presidents of the United States, still living, were to meet at the earliest practicable day at the city where the Constitution was formed, might not their consultation, if it should result in concurrence of judgment, reach the Administration & the Country with some degree of power? No man can with propriety summon such a meeting but yourself. I feel that we ought not to omit at least an effort. Whatever the result may be, can we permit our remaining days or years to be disturbed by the consciousness that, after having been honored by the confidence of the Republic, we have passively seen it drift to destruction?"

"Should this suggestion commend itself to your judgment, will you communicate with Mr. Tylor, Mr. Filmore & Mr. Buchanan & advise me of the result."

The accompanying letter signed by Van Buren is presumably one of the transcriptions made by Pierce for use in the correspondence with the other ex-Presidents. In it, Van Buren, though thoroughly in sympathy with the noble purpose of the idea, declines to take the initiative, doubting the success of the undertaking at the late hour: but agrees to co-operate if called upon by the others.

TWO REMARKABLE AND INTERESTING DOCUMENTS RELATING TO THE CIVIL WAR.

175. JOHNSON (ANDREW, Seventeenth Pres. of U. S.). A. L. S., 4 pp. 8vo. Greenville, Tenn., Sept. 14, 1860. To S. S. Turner, Esq. With large mezzotint portrait. 2 pieces.

A long political letter referring to the first Lincoln campaign, and interesting as showing him in direct contravention to the man who four years later accepted him as running mate.

"With reference to politics most persons in this region who talk politics look upon Lincoln's election for the Presidency with the present division and distraction of the Democratic party as a foregone conclusion. It would be bad enough to be defeated when united, but much worse divided. For the chances are many of our friends who go off now will not return to their former associations any more and leave the party in a minority for years to come. In Tennessee the political heavens now look lowering and threatening disaster and unless something can be done to bring about a union of the Democratic party defeat is inevitable. Douglas will take off some votes and many Democrats are now disheartened and have become indifferent and will not vote at all, which will enable Bell to carry the State. We have on foot a proposition which I hope will do something towards bringing the two wings together, which if carried out you will see in the papers in a few days. I hope that it will succeed and that some good will come out of it. Hon. A. O. P. Nicholson is in this place at this time & will leave for the West on the morning train. His account of the West is not of the most flattering character. As matters now stand my opinion is that the State is gone; but we are determined to make one vigorous effort to save it from Bell, which is next thing to Lincoln. I leave home to-morrow to fill a list of appointments in different portions of the State. I fear though that it will be labor lost."

176. GRANT (ULYSSES S., Eighteenth Pres. of U. S.). Autograph Dispatch Signed. 1 p. 4to. City Point, Va. Feb. 22, 1865. To E. M. Stanton, Secy. of War. Engraved portrait. 2 pieces.

177. GRANT (GEN. ULYSSES S., Eighteenth Pres. of U. S.). A. L. S., 4 pp. 8vo. New York, Nov. 30, 1864. To Gen. Marcus J. Wright. Portrait. 2 pieces.

An important letter telling of the negotiations for the terms and conditions of surrender of the Confederate forces at Vicksburg.

"All there is of importance in the matter of the surrender of Vicksburg is contained in the correspondence between General Pemberton and myself. The fact is, Gen. Pemberton, being a Northern man commanding a Southern Army, was not at the same liberty to surrender an army that a man of Southern birth would be. In adversity or defeat he became an object of suspicion, and felt it. Bowen was a Southern man all over, and knew the garrison of Vicksburg had to surrender or be captured, and knew it was but to stop further effusion of blood by surrendering. He did all he could to bring about that result.

"Pemberton is mistaken in several points. It was Bowen who proposed that he and A. J. Smith should talk over the matter of the surrender and submit their views. Neither Pemberton nor I objected; but we were not willing to commit ourselves to accepting such terms as they might propose. In a short time these officers returned. Bowen acted as spokesman. What he said was substantially this: the Confederate Army was to be permitted to march out with honors of war, carrying with them their arms, colors and field batteries. The National troops were then to march in and occupy the city, and retain the siege guns, small arms not in the hands of the men, all public property remaining. Of course I rejected the terms at once. I did agree however before we separated, to write Pemberton what terms I would give. The correspondence is public and speaks for itself. I held no council of war. Hostilities having ceased, officers and men soon became acquainted with the reason why. Curiosity led officers of rank—most all the General officers—to visit my headquarters with the hope of gathering some news. I talked with them very freely about the meeting between General Pemberton and myself, our correspondence, &c. But in no sense was it a Council of War. I was very glad to give the garrison of Vicksburg the terms I did. There was a cartel in existence at that time which required either party to exchange or parole all prisoners either at Vicksburg or at a point on the James River within ten days after capture, or as soon thereafter as practicable. This would have used all the transportation we had for a month. The men had behaved so well that I did not want to humiliate them. I believed that consideration for their feelings would make them less dangerous foes during the continuance of hostilities, and better citizens after the war was over." etc.

178. HAYES (RUTHERFORD B., Nineteenth Pres. of U. S.). A. L. S., 1 p. 8vo. Fremont, O., Jan. 27, 1892. To Gen. Marcus J. Wright. Engraved portrait. 2 pieces.

An interesting early political letter relating to Illinois offices. "Some of us here have concluded that if it is agreeable, Bat Webb shall be our District Attorney. He would accept the place, but will not enter into a scramble for it . . . I will add that I really have my heart set upon Webb's appointment to this place, and that I believe the whole party would be gratified with it. What the Locos will do about the Congressional election no man can tell." etc.

"Yesterday morning I found a drop letter from Gov. Bissell urging . . . that my late speeches, or some of them, shall be printed in pamphlet form both in English and German. Having had a good many letters to the same effect I went at once to the Journal office here, and set them to work to print me in English fifty dollars' worth of my last speech at Springfield . . . Some things are passing strange. Wednesday morning Douglas' paper here, the 'Register,' went out crowing over the defeat of Blair at St. Louis, and Blair's paper, the Missouri 'Democrat' comes back the next day puffing and encouraging Douglas." etc.

196. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 3 pp. 8vo. Springfield, Ill., April 6, 1860. To Hon. R. M. Corwine. Regarding possible Presidential Candidates.

An important letter dealing with the possibilities in the coming campaign. "Reaching home yesterday . . . I found your letter of the 24th of March. Remembering that when a not very great man begins to be mentioned for a very great position, his head is very likely to be a little turned. I con- cluded I am not the fittest person to answer the questions you ask. Making due allowance for this, I think Mr. Seward is the very BEST candidate we could have for the North of Illinois, and the very WORST for the South of it. The estimate of Gov. Chase here is neither better nor worse than that of Seward . . . Mr. Bates, I think, would be the best man for the South of our State and the worst for the North of it. . . . I feel myself disqualified to speak of myself in the matter," etc.

197. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 p. 4to. Springfield, Ill., May 2, 1860. To Hon. R. M. Corwine. Respecting the First Campaign. Marked "Private."

A most interesting letter regarding the political situation: "First then, I think the Illinois delegation will be unanimous for me at the start; and no other delegation will. A few individuals in other delegations would like to go for me at the start, but may be restrained by their colleagues . . . the whole of Indiana might not be difficult to get. You know how it is in Ohio. I am certainly not the first choice there; and yet I have not heard that any one makes any positive abjection to me," etc.

198. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 p. Svo. Springfield, Ill., Sept. 6, 1860. To A. K. McClure.

229. MEDILL (JOSEPH). A. L. S., 3 pp. 8vo. Tribune Office, Chicago, Dec. 8 [1894]. To W. E. Mitchell.

A highly interesting letter relating how the appellation "Honest Old Abe" came to be applied to President Lincoln. It was first used by Medill's editorial partner on the "Tribune" (who also invented the term "Copperheads") about 1857 or 1858, in that paper, and Lincoln was always so referred to in the Chicago "Tribune" from that time until he reached the White House.

Then follows a very humorous description of how he wrote his letter to Mr. Lincoln, after the latter's proclamation ordering the inhabitants to disperse and lay down their arms, and a Southern character, Bill Arp by name, hearing the letter, requested that his name be signed to it. "Bill Arp is dead, and the moss has long since covered his grave."

EXTRACT FROM THE WILL OF EDMOND DE GONCOURT [TRANSLATED]

¶ My wish is that my Drawings, my Prints, my Curiosities, my Books—in a word these things of art which have been the joy of my life—shall not be consigned to the cold tomb of a museum, and subjected to the stupid glance of the careless passer-by; but I require that they shall all be dispersed under the hammer of the Auctioneer, so that the pleasure which the acquiring of each one of them has given me shall be given again, in each case, to some inheritor of my own tastes.
